As those sailing days of summer dwindle down to the precious few, boat enthusiasts are busy on the water. On the cover, Marion's resident swan checks out a larger craft at Burr Brothers Marina. If it weren't too corny, you'd swear he said, "Wal, I Swan!"

Above, a bevy of small craft await action to Marion Harbor center where masts look like a birch forest.

Selectmen's Meeting

AUGUST 30, 1983 - by Virginia Arral

Selectmen opened the meeting with a moment of silence for Albert Morgado. Chairman John N. DeCosta called "Al" a life-long friend whom he met for the first time in 1944.

DeCosta said, "Every child in town, whether Al cut his hair or not, could get bubblegum or candy from Al. It's a great, great loss to the town. Our sympathy goes out to the family."

Selectman Frank Suzan said as far as he could remember there have been only two proprietors of the barber shop - Abraham Skidmore, who was a tradition in his time for his activities with children - then there was Al for the past 30 years. Suzan continued, "Besides being a barber shop, it was a place to visit, to just say hello. Al's death is the passing of an institution --he is going to be missed."

Selectman James F. Huntoon added his thoughts noting that Al will be greatly missed by all who knew him. He noted that Al's Barber Shop always was a good place to leave nomination papers for those seeking office.

BOAT REPAIRS AT TOWN WHARF

Because an oil spill in the harbor last week posed a threat to the oyster beds near Gibbons' Beach and because town officials feel it could happen again and create a more hazardous condition, Selectmen Tuesday voted to restrict the boats allowed to be repaired on the town wharf.

Rather than having no repairs done at the wharf, Selectman Frank Suzan recommended just emergency repairs be allowed for out-of-towners.

New regulations include: Repairs can be made at the wharf if:

-the boat being repaired is registered to a town resident.

-the harbormaster determines it is an emergency.

-the boat is being repaired by a local boatyard.

Selectmen also voted to increase the daily rental wharf space to repair an out-of-town boat from 25 cents to 50 cents per foot. The charge of $5.00 for the use of utilities remains the same. Town registered boats are not required to pay.

Harbormaster Lloyd Haskell explained the sequence of events leading up to the new rules becoming necessary. He said the 49 foot Tamarach, which has no sails or motor, was towed into the wharf by a Quincy fishing boat. Haskell said he had the financial status of the owners Marc and Robert Mardirosian of Falmouth checked out and found it O.K.

"At first I thought the owners wanted to make repairs and then leave," Haskell said.

The owners have been issued papers signed by both the Selectmen and Harbormaster ordering them to remove their boat within 14 days. The order was hand-delivered by a police officer, at the recommendation of Police Chief James Moran.

Shellfish Warden Al Pauline said he smelled fuel oil, then saw the oil being pumped on the wharf. He advised the owners to plug the hole; they did so but with a porous material, and it still leaked. Pauline said he proceeded to put a bottle in the hole, and it still leaked.

Pauline offered a suggestion that the wharf have a holding tank where oil could be pumped out at the owners' expense.

Police Chief Moran expressed the opinion the owners had broken the rules and urged Selectmen to allow a police officer to hand deliver the removal order. The Chief noted that state law, Chapter 130, Section 5 calls for a $150 to $5,000.00 fine for allowing the discharge of fuel oil into the waterways. Selectmen agreed to try the removal order first.

Selectman James Huntoon asked, "Do we want to allow this type of work? We have been trying to protect so much in town. I can't see any economic benefit to the town having out-of-town boats repaired on the wharf", Huntoon said.

Huntoon added that perhaps the Conservation Commission should be questioned as to what kinds of preventive measures can be established and what they feel we should allow. "We aren't going to stop everything, but we need control", said Huntoon.

Board of Health members Dan Lee and John Bowman discussed the hazards of the cleaning of a copper-painted boat at the wharf. Lee felt it could be hazardous, but Bowman felt the modern copper paint is less dangerous now.

Lee commented, "Our problem is the wharf. It isn't a major problem right now, but it could be from other boats in the future."

In other business Selectmen:

BUDGET FIGURES ORR SCHOOL DISTRICT

Selectmen heard from the Old Rochester Regional District School Committee on the recertificated budget figure for fiscal 1984 - $3,299,649.18.

"Only by working together with understanding for the problems faced by the three towns and the District will we be able to assure our children the best education possible," wrote Patricia Ryan, school committee chairman.

At the recommendation of Frank Suzan, Selectmen agreed to ask the school committee for a more detailed computer breakdown of items. He felt this information would assist the Selectmen in reviewing next year's budget.

STAINED GLASS WINDOWS AT TOWN HALL

Selectmen met with Tony Pelson, who showed them his preliminary drawings for the stained-glass windows in the refurbished Town Hall.

Pelson said that when the glass is installed the designs will be brighter and more beautiful. "The only hitch is that the windows will be seen from the outside, but not from the inside, unless you're in the closet."

Letter to The Editor

On August 28, 1963, Martin Luther King delivered his "I Have a Dream" speech from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington. I have just reread it.

Rev. King observed: (1) That the promise of the Emancipation Proclamation had not been kept during the 100 years which had followed it; (2) that the Negro was still a victim of segregation, discrimination, and "poverty in the midst of a vast ocean of material prosperity"; (3) that "the marvelous new militancy which has engulfed the Negro community" was not the answer; (4) that "meeting physical force with soul force" was the answer; and (5) that the goal is freedom for "all of God's children, black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics."

In addition to a dream, Rev. King had a theme song, entitled "We Shall Overcome". I joined him and others in singing it one night in 1962; and I recall the concluding line of one stanza: "Black and white together, we shall overcome". In the following twenty years, black and white together have overcome a lot, but not everything. Unfortunately, for instance, black people are still not all out of poverty; and they cannot all get any jobs they would like to have. Unfortunately, too many white people are still in the same boat.

One thing that has happened in those years has been evidences of the "marvelous new militancy" which Rev. King did not consider the right answer. We have seen Malcolm X, the exponent of Black Power, Black Revolution, and the religion of Islam, to which some professional athletes such as Cassius Clay and Lew Alcindor were converted, along with countless other persons. We have seen the Black Panthers and other similar groups.

Lately, there seems to be more recognition of the greatness of Martin Luther King and his principles, in which Rev. Jesse Jackson is a prominent figure. This may be partly because he, as a Christian minister, cannot conscientiously approve the religion of Islam, nor follow in the footsteps of one of its missionaries. It may be partly because he sees a lot of political muscle among those, both black and white, who remember and respect Rev. King.

Personally, I remember and respect Martin Luther King, and would remember him among great Americans; but I see making his birthday a national holiday as a separate problem.

Our national holidays usually celebrate events and not the birthday of individuals, with the exception of George Washington. Franklin, Jefferson and Lincoln, among white celebrities; and Douglas and Carver, as well as King, among black celebrities, have not so far been honored in this way. Why? A good answer is that there are already enough holidays, if not too many.

In Massachusetts, we have an average of at least one holiday a month, varying by localities. There are the national holidays plus Evacuation Day (merged with St. Patrick's Day in South Boston at least), Patriot's Day, Bunker Hill Day, Columbus Day, Veterans' Day, Yom Kippur and Good Friday.

The release of persons of all colors and conditions from poverty, and their enjoyment of increasing prosperity, can hardly be advanced by any more days of legalized loafing.

Wagner guarding Charleston Harbor, South Carolina, by the Massachusetts 54th Regiment of Infantry. Captain Donald R. Bernard, Commanding Officer of Co. B, 3rd Reg't., Heavy Artillery of the Mass. Volunteers, has once again called upon his troops to break out their authentic uniforms and equipment for a Civil War re-enactment at Fort Phoenix.

The living history event of the "Assault of Fort Wagner" was chosen with several thoughts in mind. First, it was based on the fact that few communities can boast an authentic Civil War fortification complete with heavy cannons that can still be fired from time to time. Fort Phoenix is one of a very few places where one can go to actually see a 24 pounder belch in awesome manner.

Secondly and probably more important is that during the War of the Rebellion, the first "Black Regiment" of soldiers was raised in the State of Massachusetts. This regiment was designated as the 54th Regiment of Infantry. Many of the men who made up the ranks of that regiment came from New Bedford, just across the river from Fort Phoenix. The regiment, when at full strength, totaled about 1,000 men under arms equipped with Enfield Muskets. When the call went out to raise this regiment, the response was quick and without delay. So much so that soon a second regiment was raised and received the designation of the 55th Regiment of Infantry.

One of the heroes of the battle was Private William Carney of Company C, Fifty-Fourth Regiment, who received the Congressional Medal of Honor for his valor and was promoted to Sgt. Carney will be played by Carl Cruz; President Lincoln by Dave Williford, General Grant by John Miller, and Frederick Douglass by Donald Gomes.

On Friday, September 9th, at 6:30 p.m. at the Carney Elks Lodge located in New Bedford at the corner of Mill and Cottage Streets, there will be a re-enactment of the arrival of Frederick Douglass for the purpose of recruiting blacks for the Federal service, after which a brief ceremony

Moon Rock on Display

LUNAR SAMPLE ON DISPLAY CHILDREN'S MUSEUM

The Children's Museum, in cooperation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), will be displaying an actual lunar sample at the Museum from September 13 through October 9. The Moon Rock, a piece of breccia (rock composed of pieces of older rock) is inbedded in plastic to protect it from earth's atmosphere and the rigors of shipping. The particular sample on loan to the Museum weighs 128 grams or approximately one-quarter pound. It was collected near the Lunar Lander by astronaut John Young of Apollo 16. The lunar sample was collected in the Descartes region of the highlands of the moon. The rock was produced on the moon by meteoric collisions about 4000 million years ago. It probably stayed buried until about 2 million years ago when a relatively small meteroid produced the ¼ mile wide crater South Ray.

In conjunction with the display of lunar sample #60016, noted amateur astronomer and Children's Museum Board member Gerald Dyck will conduct a slide program about earth's closest neighbor on Monday, September 19, at 7:30 p.m. Weather permitting, observations of the lunar surface will be made by telescope including Mr. Dyck's 10" Newtonian reflector which is on long term loan to the Museum.

The Children's Museum is located at 276 Gulf Road in South Dartmouth. Public hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 1-5 p.m. on Sunday. The Museum is closed on Monday. For further information contact the Museum by phone at 993-3361.

All participants need to pre-register before September 12th by calling the Club between 9 a.m. and 12 noon. A round robin format will be used so that starting team members, alternates and substitutes can be chosen for the Winter Season. The cost of these tryouts is $3. All match balls as well as the Pizza party afterwards will be provided courtesy of the Marion Racquet Club.

Any player who has not reached his or her 18th birthday prior to October 1st, 1983 is eligible to play. This League is specifically designed to offer competition for anyone under that age, who does not already compete in junior tournaments on a regular basis. Inter-club matches within the Cape Cod Division will take place on a home-and-away basis on Saturday afternoons. Worth mentioning is the fact that last year's 18 Under team won the Cape Cod Division.

Club professional Chick Renfrew will be there to supervise the tryouts. Chick will be the team's coach at the practice sessions, which will be held once a week after school.

To pre-register or if you have any questions, please call the Club at 748-0669 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon, and we'll be glad to help.

Rape Crisis Project

The Rape Crisis Project of the New Bedford Women's Center needs volunteers. The Project, recently established with funds from the city's Emergency Jobs Act monies, has hired a staff of five who are organizing a 24 hour hotline, community education programs, and counseling services. The Project needs 10 to 20 volunteers to help staff the hotline, and for public speaking engagements.

Volunteers need no prior experience; they will be trained in an intensive program that will run twice a week, three hours a session, for six weeks. At the end of the training volunteers will choose which aspect of the Rape Crisis Project they want to be involved with. Both male and female volunteers are sought of every race and culture in the area.

We will be conducting interviews, starting September 12th through the month of September. An orientation will take place on September 28th, and the training will begin on October 3rd. Those interested should call the Women's Center at 996-3341 or 996-3343.

Citizen Advocates

Can you imagine not having any friends? There are many individuals in our community whose only relationships are with people who are paid to be with them. Others find themselves limited to relationships only with members of the their immediate family.

Citizen Advocates are volunteers who help to end this loneliness. Citizen Advocates freely offer their time and energy to create one-to-one relationships with someone who is developmentally disabled. Through Citizen Advocates our community reaches out to include those who previously have been excluded and isolated.

For the past nine years the Association for Retarded Citizens of Greater New Bedford has recruited, trained, and supported volunteers in becoming Citizen Advocates for persons with disabilities.

In recognition of the accomplishments made by all those who have participated in the Citizen Advocacy Program, New Bedford Mayor Brian Lawler has proclaimed September 18 - 24, 1983 Citizen Advocacy Week. "... The City of New Bedford wishes to commend and support such voluntary action which both improves the lives of our citizens and contributes to the development of our life together as a community."

If you are interested in becoming a Citizen Advocate, or if you just want more information about the program, please call 996-8551 and ask for John Zarecki.

Greenpeace Whale Watch

GREENPEACE SAILS TO VIEW THE WHALES

Greenpeace, the worldwide environmental group known for its work protecting the whales from extinction, will be embarking many times this fall for more pleasant encounters with the whales. Thousands of people are expected to join the environmentalists for their fall whale watching trips from Provincetown and Plymouth Harbors.

"Whale watching has truly become a phenomenon in New England," said Greenpeace spokeswoman Peggy Christian. "It's one of the most incredible sights in nature, and the people of New England have it virtually right in their own backyards. Hundreds of people travel halfway across the country every summer to view the whales."

Stellwagen Bank, a major summer feeding ground for the humpback, minke, finback and right whales, extends northward from Cape Cod across the mouth of Massachusetts Bay. The area, also abundant in fish and seabirds, is the summer residence for a population of humpback whales that winter in the Caribbean. Marine biologists, studying this population and on board the Greenpeace whale watches, have developed methods to identify individual animals. They provide Greenpeace whale watchers not only with a general commentary on the whales, but can provide information on many of the individual whales in this population. Humpback whales are approximately 50 feet at adult size, and are a favorite with whale watchers because of their spectacular acrobatic behavior.

Other possible whale sightings include the finback, which is the second largest animal in the world; minke whales, the smallest baleen (filter feeders); right whales, the most endangered whale in the world; and the orca, also known as the killer whale. Dolphins are also sighted in pods of up to 300 animals.

"The money raised from the sale of the tickets helps our organization in its works," states Christian. "Greenpeace has been active for over 10 years, leading the struggle to end commercial whaling. In 1982 the International Whaling Commission voted a three year phase out of commercial whaling. Although several nations have announced they will continue their whaling activity despite this international conservation regulation, Greenpeace is dedicated to assuring its enforcement."

fall will give special impetus through the medium of high-impact visual entertainment to the growing popular interest in natural history. It will sponsor and promote statewide in October an International Exhibition of Nature Photography.

Organized and produced by the Massachusetts Camera Naturalists, the Salon presents on dual screens the dissolve projection of upwards of 400 color slides selected from a worldwide competition representing the best work of some of the great photographers in many countries of the world. Most of them are dedicated amateurs, including a good number of New Englanders. Such a salon has in past years set viewer attendance records for such spectaculars; and in one recent season was taken on tour from Bangor, Maine to Washington, D.C.

Eager to share with the great body of its 30,000 membership the splendor, the secrets and the beauty of nature as disclosed in these prestigious exhibitions, the Audubon Society will underwrite expenses for production and presentations of the Salon so that all 17 of its outlying sanctuaries and nature centers will have the opportunity to offer it not only to the members but to the general public as well. Local communities from Cape Cod's shores to the hills of the western Berkshires will be advised in the media of the dates and locations. Audubon's schedule encompasses dates from mid-October through the first week in November. Dates for various other club sponsors are being booked also, to interface with Audubon presentations.

One of but very few all-nature picture exhibitions produced with recognition and endorsement of the highly-regarded Photographic Society of America, this biennial international competition has for many years been a favorite with nature photographers. They have come to know and respect the high standards for acceptance set by the Massachusetts Camera Naturalists, who offer 20 honor medals for the best slides and prints in several different categories. The winning entries are reproduced and published in the Salon catalog, which lists also the names of all the competitors whose work is included in the exhibition; it makes special mention of those who received second honors.

The Camera Naturalists, an association of serious conservationists and photographers, was organized 24 years ago by its now President Emeritus, Leslie A. Campbell, himself internationally honored and a winner of most of the top awards in amateur photography in this country. He makes his home in Belchertown, where he is a water quality researcher with the Metropolitan District Commission. His original group of associates has now expanded to include members from every New England state.

All interested photographers are invited to participate in the competition. They need not be members of Mass. Audubon nor of any organized photographic group. An entry form which details entry procedure may be obtained free upon request to the form distributor, F. A. Pelletier, R.F.D. #3, Winsted, CT. 06098; or a form may be picked up at any Audubon Sanctuary. The closing date for receipt of entries is September 16, with judging to be conducted the day following. All slides and prints will be returned to the makers within 15 days of the close of the Salon tour.
